SYNOPSIS OF THE LITTLE MERMAID

by Hans Christian Andersen

The Little Mermaid lives in an underwater kingdom with her widowed father (the sea king or Mer-King), her dowager grandmother, and her five older sisters, each of whom had been born one year apart. When a mermaid turns fifteen, she is permitted to swim to the surface for the first time to glimpse the world above, and when the sisters become old enough, each of them visits the upper world one at a time every year. As each returns, the Little Mermaid listens longingly to their various descriptions of the world inhabited by human beings.

When the Little Mermaid's turn comes, she rises up to the surface, watches a birthday celebration being held on a ship in honor of a handsome prince, and falls in love with him from a safe distance. A violent storm hits, sinking the ship, and the Little Mermaid saves the prince from drowning. She delivers him unconscious to the shore near a temple. Here, she waits until a young woman from the temple and her ladies-in-waiting find him. To her dismay, the prince never sees the Little Mermaid or even realizes that it was she who had originally saved his life.

The Little Mermaid becomes depressed and asks her grandmother if human beings can live forever. The grandmother explains that humans have a much shorter lifespan than a mermaid's 300 years, but that when mermaids die, they turn to sea foam and cease to exist, while humans have an eternal soul that lives on in heaven. The Little Mermaid, longing for the prince and an eternal soul, visits the Sea Witch in a dangerous part of the ocean. The witch willingly helps her by selling her a potion that gives her legs in exchange for her beautiful voice, as the Little Mermaid has the most enchanting voice in the world. The witch warns the Little Mermaid that once she becomes human, she will never be able to return to the sea. Consuming the potion will make her feel as if a sword is being passed through her body, yet when she recovers, she will have two human legs and will be able to dance as no human being has ever danced before. However, she will constantly feel as if she were walking on sharp knives, and her feet will bleed terribly. In addition, she will obtain a soul only if she wins the love of the prince and marries him, for then a part of his soul will flow into her. Otherwise, at dawn on the first day after he marries someone else, the Little Mermaid will die of a broken heart and dissolve into sea foam upon the waves.

After she agrees to the arrangement, the Little Mermaid swims to the surface near the prince's palace and drinks the potion. She is found by the prince, who is mesmerized by her beauty and grace, even though she is mute. Most of all, he likes to see her dance, and she dances for him despite suffering excruciating pain with every step. Soon, the Little Mermaid becomes the prince's favorite companion and accompanies him on many of his outings. When the prince's parents encourage their son to marry the neighboring princess in an arranged marriage, the prince tells the Little Mermaid he will not because he does not love the princess. He goes on to say he can only love the young woman from the temple, who, he believes, rescued him. It turns out that the princess from the neighboring kingdom is the temple girl, having been sent to the temple for her education. The prince declares his love for her, and the royal wedding is announced at once.

The prince and princess celebrate their new marriage on a wedding ship, and the Little Mermaid's heart breaks. She thinks of all that she has sacrificed and of all the pain she has endured for the prince. She despairs, thinking of the death that awaits her, but before dawn, her sisters rise out of the water and bring her a knife that the Sea Witch has given them in exchange for their long, beautiful hair. If the Little Mermaid kills the prince and lets his blood drip on her feet, she will become a mermaid once more. All of her suffering will end, and she will live out her full life in the ocean with her family.

However, the Little Mermaid cannot bring herself to kill the sleeping prince lying with his new bride, and she throws the knife and herself off the ship into the water just as dawn breaks. Her body dissolves into foam, but instead of ceasing to exist, she feels the warm sun and discovers that she has turned into a luminous earthbound spirit, a daughter of the air. As the Little Mermaid ascends into the atmosphere, she is greeted by other daughters who tell her she has become like them because she strove with all her heart to obtain an immortal soul. Because of her selflessness, she is given the chance to earn her own soul by doing good deeds to mankind for 300 years after which she will rise up into the Kingdom of God.

HANS CHRISTIAN ANDERSEN

Hans Christian Andersen was a beloved Danish writer of fairy tales, plays, travelogues, novels, and poems. Born in Odense to a poor family, at fourteen he left his apprenticeship to a weaver to go to Copenhagen where he was accepted at the Royal Danish Theatre. The director, Jonas Collin, served as a mentor, sending Andersen to grammar school, enlisting King Frederick VI to help pay for the boy's education, and ultimately enrolling him at Elsinore.

He enjoyed his first success as a writer in 1829 and with a grant from the king undertook the first of many European journeys. He published his first collection of fairy tales in 1835, and this collection contained the Little Mermaid and other notable stories such as The Princess and the Pea, The Emperor's New Clothes, and Thumbelina. A second collection followed in 1838, and he enjoyed a breakthrough year in 1845 when four of his fairy tales, including The Little Mermaid, were translated into English. Andersen's literary reputation continued to grow, and he associated with other notable authors of the period, among them Charles Dickens and Søren Kierkegaard.

He died in 1872 in a house near Copenhagen. He was internationally revered for his work and recognized by the Danish government as "a national treasure."

QUESTIONS TO THINK ABOUT

1. What do you think of the bargain the Little Mermaid makes with the Sea Witch?
2. Why are mermaids allowed to go to the surface to observe human beings only once a year and why does the Little Mermaid find human life more appealing?
3. How does her self-sacrifice in not killing the Prince contribute to her transformation into a spirit of the air?

THE ROBIN & CLARK MUSICAL VERSION OF THE LITTLE MERMAID

Marc Robin and Curt Dale Clark have written the book (play), music, and lyrics for their own version of The Little Mermaid. They retell the story for a present-day audience, combining song, dance, costumes, and scenery with the story to make an hour-long magical live theatre experience. Here's what they do with the original tale by Hans Christian Andersen:

THE LITTLE MERMAID

Scene One Deep down in the enchanted sea in the kingdom of the widowed Poseidon, the sea creatures are preparing a birthday celebration for one of his daughters, Melody, The Little Mermaid. Turtell, a giant tortoise, and Bobell, a frog, are arranging the festivities. Bobell confesses he took Melody to the surface at her request, though he knows Poseidon has forbidden it. The pair invite the other fantastical sea creatures and the audience to join them in a lively calypso dance (Birthday in the Sea). Melody arrives with her father and is surprised by all the well-wishers. Poseidon gives her a tiara, and Melody thanks him, but says she wants more than anything else to live in the world and gain an immortal soul. (Up There) She decides to make the journey herself to find her way out of the sea.

Scene Two As she arrives at the surface she finds a royal ship with the sailors all engaged in a celebration of Prince Alexander's twenty-third birthday. The sailors, joined by the Prince's affable dog Collier, engage in a humorous limerick contest and dance competition (Sailor Limericks) Though Bobell has hurried to find her, Melody eludes him, determining to get closer to see the Prince, with whom she is already falling in love. A fierce storm comes up quickly, and the Prince is washed overboard. With Bobell's help Melody rushes into the water and pulls Alexander to the safety of the shore.

Scene Three Melody helps the Prince up onto a fishing pier and revives Bobell. She kneels beside the Prince and wonders how someone so beautiful could ever hurt her. (Illusions) She wants to stay by his side until help arrives, but as Collier approaches leading the way to his master, Melody and Bobell retire to a small distant rock and watch the scene unfold from there. Princess Victoria arrives and wakens the Prince. He believes it is she who has saved him, and he sings a reprise of Illusions, which soon becomes a duet as Melody sings from the rock. Victoria goes off in search of help and the Prince faints again. When he comes to, his men and Collier are there, but not the mysterious woman who, he believes, has saved him. Melody rapidly grasps the danger of this mistaken identity scenario. She resolves to find a permanent way out of the sea so she can come back to the Prince and have him fall in love with her. Her wish is overheard by Flutter, a beautiful butterfly (who is really Melody's mother under an enchantment). Flutter dances and then tells Melody if she wishes to become human that badly, she must go to the Sea Witch. Bobell warns Melody about the evil witch (I Hear), but Melody insists.

Scene Four Melody and Bobell find the Sea Witch's cave. Looking fearsome and ugly, Seaweed rises from a cauldron and ascertains what Melody wishes. She sings Finest Creature, telling the mermaid she can give her legs in exchange for her beautiful voice, but that she does not have the power to give Melody a soul. Only if the Prince falls in love with her and marries her, will the mermaid receive a soul through him and recover her voice. If he marries another, she will die at that very moment. The Sea Witch casts the spell and the mermaid is transformed.

Scene Five The scene shifts back to shore. Melody and Bobell are resting on a small rock when Turtell finally catches up with them. The Prince enters accompanied by Collier, and Melody pretends to be shipwrecked and unconscious. The Prince revives her, and she pretends to faint again in his arms. He carries her offstage as Flutter arrives, and she uses her magic to give Collier a human voice. The happy dog sings Bow, Wow, Wow and does a delighted dance. Bobell, Turtell, and Flutter discuss the uncertainty of Melody's situation and enlist Collier to take them to the castle.

Scene 6 In a brief transition back to Poseidon's chambers under the sea, the unhappy father expresses his worry about the Little Mermaid.

Scene 7 At the palace three months later, Melody has become the Prince's devoted companion. They are clearly in love, and the Prince declares that though he had promised to marry the lady who, he believes, had rescued him, Victoria has disappeared, and he now decides that he will announce his marriage to Melody that night at the festival. Elated by this turn of events, Bobell, Turtell, Flutter, and Collier sing Happy Ending.

Scene 8 The festival is in full swing. There is dancing (Tambourine Duet), vocal competitions by courtiers (With My Voice, Thou Takest My Flower) and finally a beautiful dance performed by Melody herself. (Waltz of the Enchanted Sea). The Prince declares Melody the winner of the festival and introduces her as his bride-to-be just as the elusive Princess Victoria enters the hall. Stricken but faithful to his word, Alexander reaffirms his promise to Victoria. Overcome, Melody rushes from the room, leaving behind her robe, which the Prince picks up as the lights fade.

Scene 9 The sea creatures have gone to get Poseidon's help. He comes to his daughter's aid without his crown and scepter. He has traded them to the Sea Witch in exchange for a second chance for Melody. Seaweed has given him a dagger with which Melody must kill the Prince before he kisses his new bride. At the wedding the entire company sings of the tangled situation (Montage). Reluctantly, the marriage is solemnized, and Victoria demands Alexander kiss her. Poseidon and Melody, dagger in hand, draw near to the couple. Melody raises the dagger, but cannot strike; she hands it to her father just as Victoria grabs the Prince and kisses him. With a cry Melody falls dead in her father's arms. With a chillingly evil laugh, Victoria reveals herself to be Seaweed. An angry verbal confrontation ensues, as Flutter reveals that she is the victim of Seaweed's enchantment, but that she actually sent Melody to the surface so that Seaweed would be lured into this battle. The Prince enters with a mirror, commands Seaweed to drop the dagger and when she does not, forces her to look at her own evil reflection. The sight destroys her, and with a clap of thunder she vanishes. Poseidon and Flutter are joyously reunited as husband and wife. Poseidon laments that he does not have the power to bring Melody back to life, but the sailor Fogarty suggests that if one person cannot do it, the collective magic of everyone present may be able to. Appealing to the audience they chant "I give you life," and Melody comes back to life. The Prince sings rapturously to his beloved (Melody) and asks Poseidon for her hand in marriage. Poseidon, declaring that the sea and land are no longer to be separate worlds, abolishes hatred, prejudice, and declares them all one enchanted universe.

Scene 10 The second royal wedding ensues. Bobell, Turtell, and company sing, followed by the entire company singing My Little Girl. As Melody and Alexander are pronounced man and wife and kiss, everyone sings a reprise of Happy Ending.

ACTIVITIES

TELL THE PERFORMERS WHAT YOU THINK DISCUSSION QUESTIONS AFTER THE PERFORMANCE

1. How is the experience of watching the musical version of this story different from the experience of reading it?
2. Which is your favorite character and why?
3. Do you like the ending of this musical version and, if so, why? Or why not?
4. Why is it truly a “very happy ending” not only for the Prince and Melody but for the kingdoms of the sea and the earth?
5. Why does the Prince feel obligated to marry Victoria?
6. What lessons is the musical version of The Little Mermaid teaching us?
7. What do you think about Seaweed’s fate? Does she deserve to disappear? How is this different from the Disney movie (where she is impaled on a ship’s bow and dies) or the original fairytale (where she continues to live in the sea)?
8. What songs did you like best?

LET'S PLAY MAD LIBS!

The leader asks the group to call out specific kinds of words – nouns (names of people, places, things), adjectives (descriptive words), verbs (action words), adverbs (words that tell us how, when, or why), exclamation (short emotional expression). The leader fills in the blanks with these new words and reads it back to the group. The results are usually very funny! Enjoy the game with this selection from The Little Mermaid.

Far out in the _____ [ noun], where the water is as _____ [adjective] as the prettiest _____ [noun], and as clear as crystal, it is very, very deep; so _____ [adjective], indeed, that no cable could fathom it: many church_____ [noun], piled one upon another, would not reach from the ground beneath to the surface of the water _____ [adverb]. There dwell the Sea King and his _____ [noun]. We must not imagine that there is nothing at the bottom of the sea but bare _____ [adjective] sand. ## LET'S DRAW AND WRITE

1. On a separate sheet of paper, write your own fairy tale. Try to include as many of these elements as you can: a prince and princess, an evil character, spells and curses, good and wicked deeds, and a little moral at the end of the tale. You can use traditional lines like “Once upon a time” and “They lived happily ever after” or you can change these the way Marc and Curt do in their musical version.
2. Fairy tales often take place in strange and wonderful places. Draw a picture of the way you imagine one of these people or places:
  - Seaweed, the Sea Witch
  - Poseidon’s palace under the sea
  - The Prince’s dog, Collier
  - Flutter as the Butterfly and in her human form as Poseidon’s wife
3. Color the drawing which you find at the back of this booklet. You can make it as fantastical as you like.
